EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS.

The many expressions of approval, during the last few days, of the plan under which the Mason County Health League assumes control of the operation of Hayswood Hospital, and the almost universal opinion that under this management the hospital will be successful, are evidences of the confidence of the citizens of this community in the Health League. The Board of Directors to whom is entrusted the management of this organization, are grateful for these expressions of confidence and good will, but these alone will not make the work successful.

A great deal of money is necessary for the maintenance and organization, and a large percentage of it must come from private subscriptions. A Finance Committee composed of W. W. Hall, Jr., W. H. Rees and John J. Altmyer, are entrusted with the duty of raising these funds. They can not, of course, solicit each citizen personally. Let every one do his part by sending in a contribution and the work will continue to flourish without burdening any one. This is everybody's business; let every one help.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Langfels and son returned Sunday from a visit to relatives in Cincinnati and Covington.

JAMES A. WALLACE

WELL KNOWN BUSINESS MAN AND LARGE PROPERTY HOLDER, ANNOUNCES FOR COUNCIL.

In another place in this paper will be found the announcement of Mr. James A. Wallace as a candidate for Councilman from the Fifth Ward.

Possibly no one in this city is better known than James Wallace, who has come up from a comparatively obscure lad to the prominent place he now occupies in the business and real estate world, he having been the means of starting the first all around paying restaurant in Maysville, and the fact that he has been successful goes without saying.

And as a successful business man he now comes to ask to be allowed to show his prowess in running city affairs and if elected, he will do it.

CHARLES CONRAD

THROWS HIS HAT INTO THE COUNCILMEN'S RING IN THE SIXTH WARD.

In another place will be found the announcement of Mr. Charles Conrad for Councilman from the Sixth Ward.

Charlie needs no words of praise or commendation. He is a splendid young man of sterling qualities, and that he is fitted for the position to which he aspires goes without saying, as he is one of this city's successful business men, and the people of the Sixth Ward will make no mistake in electing him.

Mr. Walter Linn, of Ripley, was in this city Sunday.

BIG MEETING TONIGHT

ALL PERSONS INTERESTED IN M. H. S. NIGHT SCHOOL ARE ASKED TO BE PRESENT AT MAYSVILLE HIGH SCHOOL TONIGHT AT 7:30 O'CLOCK—MANY EXPECTED.

Tonight the people interested in the night school movement put under headway by the Board of Education a few days ago, will hold a meeting at the Maysville High School building where the plans for the night school will be explained. A large crowd is expected, and as the number of pupils will be limited and no one will be admitted after the start of the school term, it is seen that it will be necessary to be present tonight. Professors William Jones and C. S. Dale will have charge of the night school. The past records of these two educators is enough to assure its success from the start. Prof. Jones will teach the business end of the school, while Prof. Dale will handle the other studies. This move is one of the best ever made by the Board of Education, and every one in the city who can do so should attend the school. Don't forget the time and place: High School tonight at 7:30.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Saturday morning County Clerk James J. Owens granted marriage licenses to the following couples:

William McGee, aged 24, and Miss Fannie J. Jackson, aged 22, both of Flemingsburg. The couple were married in the office of the clerk by Rev. W. B. Campbell, of the First M. E. church, South.

George Davis, aged 50, and Mrs. Katherine Mills, aged 46, both of this city. Mr. Davis is well known, having been in the blacksmithing business for a number of years on the corner of Plum and Fourth streets. Mrs. Mills has for the last few months been employed in the office of Dr. Leslie Brand.

Andrew C. Ring, aged 28, and Miss Rosa Rogers, aged 23, both of this county, were granted a marriage license Saturday afternoon by County Clerk James J. Owens.

MAKE THEM PAY.

Several months ago the honorable City Council passed an ordinance requiring the merchants who come into this town, for a short stay to pay a license fee of $25 per day. For about three weeks, when there was some talk of the need of revenue, these merchants were watched closely and the tax collected, but of late the city officials have become somewhat lax, and the town is flooded with these merchants who openly boast of their sales and declare this town is the easiest picking they have hit for some time. For the merchants of the town's sake, it looks as if someone should collect from these people. Then, too, Maysville's city treasury is not crammed with funds.

RAISED ANOTHER CROP.

Bertha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mastin, of Five Lick, who raised a nice little crop of tobacco last year by her own labor, has raised another small crop of the "weed" this year, and will have it ready for the early market. Miss Bertha is an industrious little day and deserving of encouragement.—Mt. Olivet Tribune-Democrat.

NEW TEA AND COFFEE HOUSE.

On Monday, October 4, Messrs. Fred and John Arn, two of Maysville's hustling young men, will open a tea and coffee house. They will handle the best of teas and coffees and The Ledger bespeaks for them the patronage of all those who delight in having the best of these beverages. Luck to you, gentlemen.

FLOURISHING BUSINESS.

Saturday morning the Flemingsburg auto truck left this city with a capacity load of passengers and freight. On the rear end were two large barrels—one of beer and the other looked like a barrel of sich. We don't know where it was going, but it was on its way—the liquor, we mean!

BIG CROWD SATURDAY.

Saturday, the merchants of this city enjoyed a large business, as a large crowd of farmers and out-of-town people were here. The streets about the business section were crowded all day and much money was put into circulation.

W. C. T. U.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet at the Third Street M. E. church this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. J. E. Burns, of the West End, was called to Cincinnati on account of the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Lane Rudy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sparks, of Mt. Olivet, were in Maysville Saturday.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

RUSSELL WRIGHT HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM A WATERY GRAVE SATURDAY MORNING WHEN HE FELL INTO RIVER.

Saturday morning, Russell Wright, aged 22 years, met with a narrow escape from drowning near the Gaebke Coal Elevators in the East End. Wright, with a few friends, was engaged in moving a houseboat from the mouth of Limestone creek to a point above this city, and had got as far as the Gaebke Coal Elevators at the foot of Poplar street. Here the driftwood had piled up behind the coal barges and the houseboat had to be dragged along the barges by a towline. The current of the river is very swift at this point and the boat was very heavy on the line. While pulling the line broke a railing to which it was fastened and let Wright and several of his companions fall into the river near the head of the barges. The swiftly-moving waters swept young Wright toward the barges at a fast gait and no doubt he would have been carried under them to his death had not Captain James Kellum of the river front, reached out and grabbed him as he came near the upper end of the barge. Wright was pulled out and sent to his home, where he soon got over the effects of the ducking.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Finkerson, Mrs. Martha Black and Mrs. Will Corey, all of Augusta, motored to this city Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Cason, of New Richmond, O., were visitors in this city Sunday.

Congratulations!

The beautiful building of the Ringgold Lodge I. O. O. F. is completed. We believe we do not exaggerate when we say that it is one of the handsomest edifices in Kentucky.

It is with great pleasure that we offer to this lodge our best congratulations on the elegant home they have built for themselves. We wish to express our appreciation also to the architects, Weber, Werner and Amram, for the beautiful structure they planned to beautify our city, also to the contractors, McDowell & Case, who so successfully carried out the architects' ideas.

We express our thanks to Sam Farrow and John Sapp for the solid foundation they erected, to Mr. Oliver for the fine brick work, to Murray & Thomas for the ornamental marble and terra cotta, to Lud Mills for the beautifully finished wood-work, to Frank Vines for the first-class plumbing installed, Short & Kain for the iron work, to McGlone for the efficient plastering and to Crane & Shafer for the fine painting and tinting.

To all these and to everyone who by their encouragement and enthusiasm have helped to make this beautiful lodge room and business house the wonderful completed structure that it is, we express our congratulations and best wishes for many successful years of occupancy in the new I. Sunday night a westbound C. & O. freight train lost its caboose near the coal docks, east of this city, and was going merrily along when Officer Stewart, of the Maysville police force, noticed the cabooseless train and telephoned to Night Sergeant Harry Walsh, who notified the C. & O. station, and the train was ordered back to get the stranded caboose.

"SOMETHING TO DO" FOR CHILDREN WHICH WILL BRING THEM JOY.

"Something To Do" is the name of a new magazine recently sent to the Post by its publishers, the School Arts Publishing Company, of Boston—a little magazine which finally found its way to the desk of the Scribbler lady.

It is well named—this little publication for boys and girls, and if the current number is a fair sample of the ones to follow, it bids fair to eventually fill a most important place in the lives of our very young people as well as to solve one of the problems continually presented to the fathers and mothers over the broad land—that of giving the youngsters something to do.

This young folks magazine is filled from cover to cover with things for them to do—things which will interest and occupy their thoughts and afford them wonderful opportunities for the employment of their clever hands. Its varied kinds of interesting employment must surely make an appeal to all classes of children.

We have numbers and numbers of wonderful magazines for mature minds and tastes but comparatively so very few to meet the needs and tastes of the younger folk.

Every child is a happy child if given something to do, and the unhappy children we meet and the unhappy older children are those who are given nothing to do which will serve as a means of development and an outlet for their restless and pent-up energies. Rarely indeed do we find a child who wishes to read all day long—never earling to work or play, and these little workers and players must be supplied with ideas and the means of developing their own special talents.

There are many, many valuable lessons along so many interesting lines of work, drawing, modeling, sewing, weaving, music, cooking, writing, staging and many others. Indeed, this bit of a magazine is a veritable gold mine as every fond father and mother who sees it will quickly perceive, and the Scribbler lady wishes with all the heart of her that every wide-awake, ambitious boy and girl in all the length and breadth of this great land of ours could have it as a regular visitor every time a new copy of it leaves the press. It is a splendid little publication, brimful of wonderful things that boys and girls may do, and after all we must be doing something—no matter how big or how little, how young or how old we may be—idle hands and unused minds make unhappy hearts.—Harriet Russell in Houston (Tex.) Post.

Mr. Ralph Shaw, aged 51, born in Ripley, dropped dead at his home in Kansas City. He was a nephew of Mrs. Bessie Perrine, of Tuckaboe, this country.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL MOMENT.

That timeworn yet sterling phrase, "the psychological moment," has a double relation to the tariff question at this time. Agitation for revision, according to campaign material, political expediency and some economic reason, is flanked by a movement to actually take the tariff out of politics and politics out of the tariff. And this movement, launched a few weeks ago by some of the leading thinkers of the country, of the various political complexions and business training, has developed and proceeded to a degree which can only find foundation on firm material.

Constructed by President H. H. Gross, of the Tariff Commission League, an organization recently formed in Chicago, and after wide consultation and suggestion, a plan has been formulated for the establishment and maintenance of a non-partisan tariff commission, with long tenure of office, a salary equal to that of a cabinet officer, a permanent and automatic appropriation by Congress and the broadest powers for investigation and research and recommendation. A significant point is the provision for an actual non-partisan Federal Commission, the phraseology of the tentative bill to be submitted for approval by Congress being "No one political party shall have a majority of the Commission."

It is proposed to make the operation of such a Commission, which does not deprive Congress of the initiative or administrative power vested in it by the Constitution of the United States, proceed to complete inquiry, have hearings where all sides shall be heard, sit with actual tariff-making branches of the national legislature and recommend changes where the current provisions and restrictions are found to be oppressive and one-sided. In other words, the Commission studies the tariff in all its phases from an economic and constructive viewpoint and places in the hands of Congress the findings upon which the tariff can be constructed and changed for the good of all and with an intelligent grasp of the entire situation.

The timeliness of such a movement is proven by the prompt indorsement and offer of co-operation from all sections, from all parties, from metropolitan and country newspapers, from industrial organizations, national state and local, agricultural press and organizations, labor bodies and high officials and many of the leading women of the country who are taking a direct interest in public welfare.

Agriculture and labor are given the same recognition and consideration as trade and commerce and any branch of American industry. This is the first time in the tariff history of this country that special interests have no advantage, either in representation or opportunity of hearing. The effort of the Tariff Commission League to stir public sentiment and stimulate popular support for such a measure as proposed is worthy of the fullest co-operation and indorsement.

When such people get together on a general plan directed toward economic adjustment and general relief of a burdensome problem, it is time for every American citizen to recognize the fact that there is something worth while on foot. The names of the active supporters of the Tariff Commission League, including officers and members of the advisory committee, are such as Thomas A. Edison, James J. Hill, Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Order of Locomotive Engineers; P. D. Coburn, ex-Secretary of Agriculture of Kansas; ex-Governor W. D. Hoard, known as "the Father of the Dairy Industry;" John Mitchell, chairman of the Labor Commission of the State of New York; George W. Perkins, Judge Charles B. Ames, ex-Supreme Justice of Oklahoma; Ike T. Pryor, of San Antonio, Texas, one of the leading cattle men and commercial figures of the Southwest; Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Jane Addams, the famous civic worker; N. W. Harris, founder of the banking concern of N. W. Harris & Sons; E. P. Ripley, president of the A. T. & S. F. railway; Henry M. Bylesby, head of the famous electrical engineering and construction concern bearing his name; Clarence S. Funk, former general manager of the International Harvester Company; Henry D. Lindsey, mayor of Dallas, Texas; Burrigdo D. Butler, president Agricultural Publishers' Association; John J. Mitchell, president Illinois Trust and Savings Bank; Frank G. Logan, president of the National Alfalfa Growers' Association, and many other of importance in the affairs of the nation.

It must be remembered that there is no reflection upon the character and ability of members of Congress, but the Tariff Commission League in its plan assumes, and justly so, that it is beyond human power to support and absorb all details, sidelights and innumerable angles to every phase of the tariff schedule. To contend that this work of research should be delegated to a representative and reliable body of analysts is only common sense. The European conflict presents a situation never before met by any country and the United States has a tremendous responsibility at home and abroad in its tariff.

The ants work hard and lay by something. Are you better than the ant, or is the ant better than you?

DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION EXTREMELY PARTISAN.

Ledger Special Correspondence.

Washington, D. C.—The motto of this administration is "Put none but Democrats on guard." The delicacy of foreign relations, the gravity of national affairs makes no difference. Business, finance and diplomacy, in which there is no real partisanship are given a partisan tinge by this administration and the "deserving Democrats" have been recognized. Some of them were later fully found out, as in the case of Minister Sullivan, who went to San Domingo.

This spirit of intense and bitter partisanship has been strangely inconsistent with the fact that this is a minority administration—but consistency has long since ceased to be an administration virtue.

The first evidence of the unyielding partisan purpose of the Democrats came, naturally, with the tooling of the foreign service—though in this there was the attenuated excuse that diplomatic representatives are the personal spokesmen for the President and should therefore be in political sympathy with him.

Then came the naming of the Federal Reserve Board. The currency bill was as much a Republican measure as a Democratic measure. Its most useful features were those which were taken from the late Senator Aldrich's plan—and these were put into the bill chiefly at Republican insistence. At any rate, the measure was supposed to be non-partisan in its operation and national in its scope. Yet the choice of the reserve cities demonstrated a jealous sectionalism run riot, and when the original personnel of the board was named it had none but Democrats upon it. Even now it has no member recognized as an out and out Republican.

The Federal Trade Commission is another case in point. This board, national and even international in its jurisdiction, was advertised in advance to be made up of the greatest minds in the land, regardless of politics. The appointments were delayed for months in order, it was said, to permit the choice of the very best men. Yet only one of the appointees has a shadow of a claim to being a Republican.

And now comes a third instance. Secretary McAdoo has just selected the International High Commission which was authorized by the Pan-American Financial Congress last spring and which will constitute the court of last resort in case of friction in the trade relations between this country and Latin America. This body will have some delicate functions to perform, and though trade is non-partisan, there is only one of the nine men whom Mr. McAdoo has chosen who is recognized at once as a Republican.

It may be that the Democratic party has a monopoly of the brains and the ability in this country. There are at least two opinions about that. But there is only one opinion as to the purpose of the present administration to grab everything in sight for "deserving Democrats," while the grabbing is good.

The value of imports at the thirteen principal customs districts of the United States for the week ending September 11, 1915, was $26,921,467 on which duties were collected to the amount of $2,813,917—an average ad valorem rate of duty of 10.4 per cent, compared with an annual average ad valorem rate of duty of 17.6 per cent under Republican law. This means a large volume of imports which are paying no revenue to the government, but are entering into competition with home products. It furnishes one reason why our treasury balance is melting away.

The President declined an invitation to visit the Bull Run battlefield for the dedication of a tablet there because, as he told the committee who waited on him, he could not take time to prepare a worthy address. But, as the Chicago Tribune points out, an address at Bull Run just now would make itself; for Bull Run is "dedicated to the American fallacy that for self-defense no preparation is needed." It is difficult, the Tribune says, to believe that any President could have been through the anxious days that Mr. Wilson has without finding that the Bull Run memorial was full of meaning and that something worthy of an occasion on that battlefield was not only definitely in mind but even insisted for utterance. Mr. Wilson might even feel it the highest duty he could perform to go to the place the Southerners know as Manassas and there say something so earnestly that it would demand and receive national attention. He might tell the Virginians that if the overwhelming resources of the North could have been brought effectively into action in the beginning, at least three years of bloodshed would have been avoided. He might tell them that unless the resources of the nation now were organized the next trial would bring another disaster. If experience has not suggested this to the President he has closed his mind.

Steady! Everyone knows you are a wise one. It's the other fellow who is a fool.

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN CRIED

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. P. W. LANSING, Box 8, Aliyn, Wash.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

MRS. BELMONT'S IDEA.

That leaders of the Woman's Suffrage movement have been figuring ahead on concerted political action, once women generally get the right to vote, has often been charged, and as often denied by the astute leaders of the suffragists. Now, however, comes Mrs. Belmont, chief propagandist of the cause, and boldly declares for independent and concerted action by women. In an address at San Francisco Mrs. Belmont said:

"The union of this sisterhood of women voters is the power politically of the near future. For twenty centuries you have been led to believe your work was to patch up the evils germinated by man so-called civilization. It is time for us women to have a civilization of our own."

"Is it at all likely that a purely woman-made civilization would be any better than the present make-shift which is so contemptuously referred to as 'man-made'? Certainly it would be superior in some important respects, where man's prejudice or ignorance or neglect has blocked human progress. But when it comes to organizing one sex into a political party whose program is to re-make the world in disregard of the other sex's needs or wishes, not only every sensible man, but every sensible woman, must see the folly of it. Even if the thing could be done—and, of course, it can't—it would mean disaster. No sex, not even the female, can remould the world and perfect human society. It takes both."—Exchange.

Commercial Attache Julian H. Arnold, Shanghai, China, in a communication to the Department of Commerce, states: "The reports of the withdrawal of the Pacific Mail steamers and the sale of two of the Robert Dollar Pacific steamers have had a very depressing effect on trade with the United States." Also, it may be added, on our trade with China, thanks to the seamen's law enacted by the last Congress and defended by Secretary Redfield.

RAILROADS HERE AND ELSEWHERE.

More than 37 per cent of the world's total of railroad tracks is in the United States, the aggregate being over 684,600 miles, of which this country has about 254,700 miles, these figures being up to the end of the year 1913, as compiled by the Royal Prussian Department of Public Works and recently published here by the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics at Chicago. As last year's construction in the United States was only about 1,500 miles, the total here is now approximately 256,000 miles, this including 650 miles of line in Alaska.

For some years Germany has been keeping account of the growth of railroads in the world, and the figures presented annually seem to be generally and rightly regarded with respect, for while it is practically impossible to accumulate absolutely accurate data concerning so large a subject, it may be asserted that the statistics given are as accurate as it is possible to have them.

Apparently all America looks alike to German eyes, for the total of railroad mileage on this side of the Atlantic is published as of North and South America, viz., 353,467 miles; next comes Europe with 214,665 miles, then Asia with only 67,051 miles, Australia with 21,959 miles, and lastly Africa with 1,959 miles. Thus it will be observed that the total for the United States is 40,000 miles greater than the total for all of Europe, and moreover, it is about 216,000 miles greater than the total for the next largest railroad nation, Germany, which has slightly less than 40,000 miles. Construction of railroads in the world is annually from about 15,000 to 17,000 miles, the first figure being the total for 1913, one of the very poorest of years for railroad building.

Railroad mileage with respect to area is densest in Belgium, where there are forty-eight miles of railroad for every 100 square miles of land. Saxony, one of the German kingdoms, ranks next, with thirty-four miles; Baden, a grand duchy, about twenty-five and a half miles, while all Germany is only nineteen miles. Great Britain is slightly more, 19.3 miles. Continuing this comparison, it is revealed that although the United States as a whole averages but little more than seven miles of railroad per 100 square miles of area, the state of New Jersey has nearly thirty and three-fourths miles, Massachusetts over twenty-six miles, Pennsylvania nearly twenty-five and three-fourths miles, Ohio nearly twenty-two and a half miles, and Illinois nearly twenty-one and a half miles. These figures show up well in comparison with most of the European countries excepting Belgium, which is small and densely populated. But our country in its entirety ranks much higher than Europe as to railroad mileage with respect to population, there being here over twenty-six miles per 10,000 people, while there it is less than five miles per 10,000.

Yet, in spite of this superiority, the United States needs many more railroads to develop its great resources and enable its swelling population to realize the opportunities which nature puts before them.—Manufacturers' Record.

SALVATION OF THE DYE INDUSTRY RESTS UPON A TARIFF WHICH WILL ADEQUATELY PROTECT THE INDUSTRY IN THIS COUNTRY.

(Buffalo Times, September 4.)

The fight the times began nearly a year ago to correct the errors of the last tariff bill and to carry out the tariff intent and letter of the last Democratic convention appears to be bearing fruit this fall. Secretary Redfield and other members of the administration see the wisdom, we are told, of changing the terms of that bill, particularly with reference to the manufacture of coal-tar dyes.

In a leading editorial yesterday the New York Sun expresses the hope that if there is still any delusion in the White House about the need of a correction of the tariff provision it will soon be dispelled.

The manufacturers of aniline dyes in this country have extended their operations considerably to meet the demands of the cotton mill towns. The chief source of dyes for this country was Germany until the outbreak of the war, and then the American manufacturers of fabrics found the dye supply suddenly cut off, and the American dye makers unable to meet the demand. Buffalo has one of the largest and best of this country's dye-making establishments in the big Schoellkopf plant on the Buffalo river, but it has always been rather difficult for the dye-makers of this country to compete with foreign manufacturers on account of the difference in wage scales of the two countries.

The salvation of the dye-making industry in this country at the present time rests in a revision of the tariff which will equalize the difference in the cost of labor between the two countries. The skilled workmen in the dye industries of the United States are paid approximately five times as much as the same class of labor in foreign countries. The difficulty of competing under such conditions is readily apparent, and by reason of the tremendous volume of dyes used in this country it seems that the government should take the necessary steps to protect the American manufacturer and workman, not to the extent of enabling him to raise the price of his products to an excessive figure, but sufficiently high to enable him to continue to pay the American rate of wages and yet compete on an even basis with the foreign manufacturer.

A COMBINATION TRAVELING BAG AND LIFE PRESERVER.

A valise that may be used in emergencies as a life preserver promises to be a necessary part of the equipment of the careful traveler in the near future. It is the invention of John L. Edmund, a young Norwegian.

The new combination traveling bag and life preserver is to all outward appearances an ordinary hand bag. However, it is equipped with a pair of waterproof trousers which, together with the valise proper, forms a buoyant, water-tight suit. There are also provided two tin-like bags in which the wearer can place his arms, and, if he so desires, propel himself through the water. The body of the case is equipped with a window and two air valves which may be locked from the inside. It is optional with the wearer whether the bag portion is closed or not, since the suit will not sink. The position of the wearer when in the water is one of perfect comfort; he may stand upright, lean on one arm or rest on the back or side without danger of tipping. Sufficient food to last for several days can be taken into a compartment intended for the purpose in the suitcase portion. Should an accident befall the outer covering, there is an emergency air bag which may be blown up from the inside and which will provide the necessary buoyancy to keep the suit and its occupant floating. The wearer of the suit may remain in the water for from four to five days without danger of sinking or death by exposure, and in these days of the perfected wireless telegraph it is seldom more than a few hours before rescuers are on the scene after the sinking of a vessel.

Normally, the trousers portion and the flaps of the life preserver are folded compactly into the bottom of the suitcase, leaving ample room for anything one may wish to carry in the bag proper. The bag, as well as the suit, is made of waterproof cloth. It may be made to suit the purchaser, as to shape, size and material.

A few short weeks and the town pessimist will be cursing the cold weather. But let him curse—it's his chief occupation in life.

If the girls at the fashionable bathing beaches continue modernizing their costumes there will soon be nothing left but the fig leaf.

COST OF STATE ROADS.

The cost of a road is dependent upon not only the type of construction, but the amount and character of grading to be done, the cost of labor and materials, the width and thickness of surfacing, the character and amount of drainage required, and other factors of equal variability. Based upon general averages, it has been ascertained by highway specialists of the department that under average conditions macadam roads can be built in southern states from $4,000 to $5,000 per mile, gravel roads at $1,500 to $2,000 per mile, and sand-clay and ball roads at from $800 to $1,500 per mile. In New England and the other eastern states macadam roads are reported at from $6,000 to $9,000 per mile, gravel roads at from $3,200 to $5,000, and bituminous macadam from $8,000 to $13,000, according to the character of construction, whether surface-treated, penetration, or mixing method. The bituminous type is quite general in the eastern states. As indicating costs in other sections of the country, the state Highway Commissioner of Michigan reported in 1913 the average cost for macadam roads to be $4,300 per mile, clay-gravel roads $1,500 per mile, and concrete roads about $10,000 per mile. The average cost of state highways constructed in Ohio in 1913 was $8,383. According to types, in 1912, the brick-paved highways averaged $14,650 per mile, and the macadam highways $5,950. In California the first 356 miles of the state system of highways cost an average of $8,143 per mile and consisted principally of thin concrete with a thin coat of bitumen. The maximum and minimum figures given are not absolute, but are intended to present the usual range of costs. The rates given include grading, drainage, surfacing and engineering costs.

PREVENTABLE INJURIES OF THE EYE.

Much has been done in recent years to protect the eyes of workmen from injuries, and the number of eyes thus saved has been considerable. Even with all these precautions, however, accidents are bound to happen, but if the sight of an eye is occasionally lost through some unavoidable accident, we can feel that everything possible has been done to prevent it. How different are our feelings when we see an eye destroyed through some accident that could easily have been avoided. Many a mother has wept bitter tears of anguish knowing that she alone was to blame for the loss of sight in her baby's eye, through her carelessness. If she had not allowed the child to get within reach of scissors, pins, knives, etc., or perhaps if the child had not been allowed to run across the room with the doll in her arms, she would not have fallen, breaking the doll's eyes and having her own eyes cut by the broken bits of glass. Many of these preventable accidents can be avoided by using a little care and ordinary common sense. Not alone in the care of infants, but with adults engaged in ordinary household employments as well as a little extra precaution will often prevent serious results from apparently trivial accidents. For example, eyes have been irreparably damaged by flying bits of glass from a broken tumbler; by a tack flying into the eye, in laying a carpet; from a small bit of lime falling from a broken ceiling; from stooping in a dark room and striking the eye on the sharp corner of a table or chair. In fact, the possibilities of accidents of this sort are innumerable, where a little less haste perhaps, or a little extra care would prevent them.

In an effort to excuse the falling off of revenue, Democratic papers point out the fact that in 1914 there was shipped from Madagascar, Germany, to the United States goods valued at $3,216,000 while in 1915 the shipments aggregated only $195,000. Doesn't our Democratic friend see that he is proving that it was the war that shut off imports and took the place of the protective tariff which the Democrats repealed? That sort of protection ends when the war ends, and then Madagascar will again send us $3,216,000 of the products of her labor and take away $3,216,000 of our coin.

Four hundred and sixty miles of experimental postroads of varying types of construction are now being built through the co-operation of the federal government. It may be interesting to note the selection of localities for this use of national funds. Nearly 300 miles of these roads are in the southern states. The South which stands at the tail of the procession in front of the tax-gatherer's window is at the head of the line before the paymaster's wicket.

By running today, the Rusellans may live to run another day.

WHEN THE KIDNEYS FAIL

Maysville People Have Found That Ill Health Follows

Do you ever feel that you simply can't go any further—that you must have rest from that lame and aching back—relief from the constant, dead-tired feeling—freedom from those stabbing, darting pains? Likely your kidneys are worn and tired and need help. The kidneys work night and day, removing uric acid from the blood and other waste created by expenditure of strength and energy. Naturally a life of unusual activity doubles the duties of the kidneys and in time the strain generally tells. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new strength to thousands of bad backs and quick relief to weakened kidneys, so users say. Let them do the same for you.

S. O. Dunca, blacksmith, Flemingsburg, Ky., says: "I had severe backaches and my kidneys were out of order, their action being irregular. Hearing about Doan's Kidney Pills, I gave them a trial and was soon convinced of their merit. They strengthened my kidneys and back."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Duncan had. Foster-McIlbura Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE SHOWS.

The Gem entertained its patrons Saturday with two big film features, "Motherhood," and "The Woman." In the first film a good moral was shown, while Charles Chaplin, who was the star, was a scream from start to finish. Special music was rendered.

The Washington Opera House presented William Wadsworth in the comedy film, "Cohen's Luck." A Biograph drama was also shown.

This afternoon the management of the Washington Opera House will give a free matinee for the citizens of this city. The attraction of the afternoon will be the great serial film, "Neal of the Navy." Every one should take advantage of the kindness of the Opera House management and attend this great show.

BIG RIVER.

The Ohio river is on a rampage of the wildest sort this week, the gauge showing a rise of about twenty feet in the last three days. The water is now over the cofferdam at the Lock and Dam No. 33, above this city, and as the result many hands are out of work, only about fifty men being employed at the big works keeping the driftwood from piling up and damaging the dam. It will be a few days before the water is expected to recede, then the work of pumping out the cofferdam for the fourth time this season will commence. In the meantime many men are idle about the city.

WHITE SOX IN COWAN 6.

Sunday afternoon at League Park, the Mayville White Sox got revenge on the Cowan Regulars for the defeat of a few Sundays ago when the Sox were drubbed by the Regulars. The Sox came back strong and knocked the offerings of Shepard, the big hurler of the Cowan team, at will and piled up eleven runs to the Cowan boys' six. The game was full of features, among which was the hitting of Reams, for the Sox. Reams got three hits out of four times at bat, two of them being doubles. The fielding of Jacobs for the Sox also featured. Manager Ishmael, of the Sox, wishes to get games for other dates for some of the teams in this vicinity.
